

Meghan George Biography

Meghan George is a third generation Lakewood resident and home owner. Her grandparents moved to Lakewood back in the 1960s where both of them taught for the Lakewood School District at various levels.

After graduating from Lakewood High School in 2000, Meghan received a degree from Ohio State University where her major was focused on education. Following her graduation from Ohio State University she went on to pursue a teaching license and post-bachelor's degree from Cleveland State University. She holds a secondary social studies teaching license. Currently, Meghan is attending Cleveland State University where she is wrapping up her Masters of Education.

Professionally, Meghan has worked for both the private and public sector. She spent three years at Harding Middle School working in a para-professional capacity before moving into the private sector. Currently she is an Account Executive with a large insurance company where her focus is on healthcare.